About Learning Difficulties

- I am not stupid but feel like I am and feel others think I am.
- I may struggle with either literacy or numeracy or both. And once I get to high school I may be pretty disengaged. There is always hope though as I want to learn.
- You can't wave a magic wand at me but if you stay patient I will succeed.
- My brain is wired a certain way but it still works. It's just not typical.
- I'm likely to forget things and be disorganised with my equipment.
- I often have Average or Above Average intelligence but often people doubt me and then I doubt myself. This is probably because I can't seem to demonstrate what I've learned or I am not learning what everyone else my age has.

What do I need?

- To be taught with colour, mnemonics, movement, texture and fun! Copying off the board or doing a worksheet will most likely not help me learn the skill or content.
- For you to believe in me every day and to let me succeed over and over again. Please create these opportunities and if you don't know how, ask me how I learn best and worst.
- if you have made 'changes' and they aren't working; try more and discuss them with me privately away from the classroom. Please don't give up.
- Keep my books and pens in your classroom please.
- Access to a timer and a clock. It helps me stay on task and reach the goal (i.e complete task and learn). Verbalising time will not be enough for me. I need to see it and hear it.
- Change it up and keep it fun.
